

SUDDEN DEATH MEETS COLDSRING CITIZEN

Andrew Blood Expired Sunday Morning.

WAS A VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR

Mr. Blood Leaves a large Family and Many Friends to Mourn his Death--
Funeral Services Held Tuesday.

The town of Coldspring lost one of its prominent citizens when Andrew Blood died at his home at 8 o'clock Sunday morning, of heart disease. Mr. Blood had been in poor health for some time, but it was reported he was improving of late; the day previous to his death he walked about his place and was taking a renewed interest in affairs of the farm.

Mr. Blood is survived by his wife, Fanny, and ten children, two having died in their youth. The children are: Clyde, Lee, Roscoe and DeForest Blood of Jamestown; Mrs. Elva Hartlett of Steamburg, and Herman and Edith who reside with their parents; Mrs. Agnes Henry of Flint, Mich., Mrs. Nellie Lindquist of Oil City, pa., Mrs. Lucia Burkhardt of Falconer.

Andrew was son of Daniel Blood, one of the pioneers of this section, and he came to Coldspring with his parents when a youth. He enlisted in Company A, 154th N.Y. Volunteer infantry, on July 25th, 1862, and served three years, being promoted to first sergeant of his company. At the close of the war he was married and began his occupation as farmer.

The funeral was held at his home Tuesday, being conducted by Rev. O. M. Dow, of Houghton, N.Y. an evangelist of the Wesleyan Methodist church of which Mr. Blood was a member and worker. Burial was made in Steamburg cemetery...(rest indecipherable)
