

mand over many bloody fields, at Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, and all the engagements of the 64th. He was never in the hospital, never wounded or furloughed, serving faithfully until finally discharged Oct. 14, 1864, at Petersburg, Va. Comrade Humpfeld returned home, where he lived until March, 1874, when he came to Collins Centre, N. Y. He is a charter member of the G. A. R. Post of his village, and one of the highly respected citizens of his community.

BURT INMAN.

On May 16, 1842, in the town of Dayton, N. Y., Burt Inman, son of Harvey and Betsey (Blair) Inman, was born. He was working on the farm when "Uncle Abe" called for his "boys" to put down the "stars and bars" in the South land and unfurl the Stars and Stripes. Sept. 16, 1861, at Dayton, N. Y., Comrade Inman was enrolled as a private of Co. H, 44th N. Y. V. I., 3d Brig., 1st Div., 5th A. C., and before the end of his valued services he was promoted Color Corp. Among his many battles we mention, Siege of Yorktown, Hanover C. H., Gaines Mills, Seven Days' Fight, Manassas, Antietam, Shephardstown, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Middleburg, Gettysburg, Jones' Cross Roads, Bristoe Station, Rappahannock Station, Mine Run, Wilderness, Siege of Petersburg, Weldon R. R., Planktown Road, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, and Laurel Hill. While stationed at Rappahannock he was detailed to guard a private house for about a month. May 8, 1864, he was wounded in the right hand at Laurel Hill, resulting in the amputation of right thumb. He was in the field hospital for a few days, thence to Campbell hospital, Washington, for three months on account of his wound. In June, 1864, he was given a thirty days' furlough, and returned promptly at the end of the time to the hospital. Comrade Inman for years kept the three bullets that hit him, but at last some sneak stole them. In the first day's fight in the Wilderness a bullet went through his knapsack, 14 inches of blanket and ration box and stopped at his shoulder; at the beginning of this fight there were eight corporals and sergeants of the color guard while at Laurel Hill, four days later there was only one left, all had fallen except the sergeant. He was sent to relieve the picket post at Mine Run, some of whom were entirely unprotected; it was a dangerous duty. When the war was nearing its close and it was plain that the North would be conquerors, Comrade Inman was given his honorable discharge Oct. 11, 1864, at Albany, N. Y. On June 28, 1870, occurred a pleasant wedding, when Comrade Inman was united in matrimony to Harriet Hooker, daughter of John and Philena (Waterman) Hooker. Mrs. Inman was born July 13, 1846, in Perrysburg, N. Y. Six children were given to this union, Clyde H., Ward P., Harvey B., Dora A., John R. and Bessie P. Ward P. passed away March 28, 1892. Comrade Inman's father was a member of Co. R, 154th N. Y. V. I., for three years, was captured at Chancellorsville, but in ten days paroled. Mrs. Inman's grandfather, John Hooker, was in the war of 1812, while her brother, Leroy J., was a member of Co. H, 44th N. Y. V. I., and also Hull M., who was a member of the same company and regiment, was killed at Gaines Mills. Our subject has ably served the public as collector, assessor, and highway commissioner about four years. He is S. V. of Merrill Post, No. 386, and has served as J. V. and O. of D. He is also a member of the Macabees, and lives on a pleasant farm in Dayton, N. Y.

AMOS M'INTYRE.

The parents of our subject, Royal and Olive (Borrows) McIntyre, were living in the town of Freedom, N. Y., when a son, Amos, came into their home July 3, 1833. He was peacefully pursuing his chosen life as a farmer near New Albion, N. Y., when war's grim summons called him from his peaceful home to the sterner duties of a soldier. He enlisted as a private in Co. B, 154th N. Y. V. I., 2d Brig., 2d Div., 20th A. C., and went forth to help fight the battles of his country Sept. 15, 1862. He was with Sherman on his western campaign to Atlanta, the glorious "March to the Sea," the campaign in the Carolinas, ending with Bentonville and Bennett House or Snow Hill. He was wounded at Swans in the shoulder by a piece of shell, and was confined in the hospital at Savannah for three or four weeks, suffering with rheumatism. When peace had come and the gloom of civil war had been dispelled by the rising of the new nation's sun, in the glory of its first exultant rays our brother and comrade was given his honorable discharge June 30, 1865, at Bladensburg, Md. On Dec. 5, 1867, at New Albion, N. Y., Private McIntyre was united in holy wedlock to Anna Ranson. Three children are the crowns of their happy union, William, Arabella and Armeta. Comrade McIntyre's brother was a faithful member of the 64th N. Y. V. I. Derby Post, of Gowanda, claim Mr. McIntyre among its honored membership and he has held the office of commander for one term. He is spending the last days of his life on a quiet farm near Gowanda, N. Y.

CAPT. JULIUS B. MALTBIE.

On Aug. 28, 1822, in Fleming, N. Y., a son came into the home of Budsec and Charlotte (Tucker) Maltbie, whom they afterwards named Julius B. In November, 1855, he was united in marriage to Caroline Armstrong, daughter of Jedediah and Delera (Copland) Armstrong, in the town of East Otto, N. Y. Five children have graced their hearthstone, Emma A., Lucius B., Delia E., Delora and Ella. When
