The Advance of the Army.

PHILADELPHIA, NOV. 3, 1862.

The Washington Star says:—"Last night the advance of the Army of the Potomac under Gens. Burnside, Fitz John Porter and others, doubtless bivouaced upon the Alexandria and Winchester turnpike from Upper-ville, three miles from Middletown, a distance of ten miles. Their Cavalry must have halted for the night very near, if not upon the line of the Manassas Gap Railroad somewhere between Front Royal and Thoroughfare Gap. The force of Gen. Sigel, which took up the line of march early, yesterday, must have advanced upon the line of the same railroad to Thoroughfare Gap ere nightfall, if not beyond that point, while another division of the army immediately in front of Washington, under Gen. Sickles, at the same time was doubtless advancing in the rear of Gen. Sigel, and at night within supporting distance of him. Such we judge from our knowledge of the country road, &c., to have necessarily been the movements on the chess board east of the Blue Ridge yesterday.

The march of Gen. Sickles's Division yesterday and before, from Alexandria almost to the extreme front, was capitally performed, and reflects great credit. Without fatiguing themselves with a forced march, they accomplished about fourteen miles a day, arriving at their temporary destination in perfect order, with everything up in time, and are already actively engaged in performing the particular service they were evidently sent forward to accomplish. Up to 2:30 p.m., to-day we have not been able to learn that the enemy had appeared in front of Sigel's command in any force. We would have learned the facts had the enemy ventured an attack on our forces in that quarter this morning. We think it now clear that Lee's flank has been turned.

Col. A. G. RICE, of the 154th, returned to his home in this village of Friday last. The Col. is looking well, and has been untiring in promoting the interests of his Regiment, which he left in the command of Col. P. H. JONES, the former Law partner of Col. RICE.

The pastoral letter, adopted by the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church at its recent triennial Convention at New-York, was read by Rev. P. P. KIDDER, at St. John's Church, in this village, on Sunday afternoon last. It is a document worthy of the Church, and some of the members in this vicinity might profit by its perusal.

DEATH IN THE 154TH.—JOHN MYERS, of the 154th, the Cattaraugus Regiment, died on the 20th inst. at Fairfax, Va. He leaves a wife and two children in Machias, in this County, to mourn his loss.

BOSWORTH, the energetic, go-ahead Agent of the Farmers' Exchange, has just returned from the city, and is just receiving at their Store in the brick-block, Ellicottville, every species and varieties of Goods adapted to the season. Call on him, and if you fail to find what you want, the gentlemanly agent will order it by the next mail!

CORPORAL FREEMAN SNOW, of Company I, Capt. CLARKE, who was wounded in the seven days' fight before Richmond, returned to his home, in this town on Sunday last. He is discharged from the service on account of his wound. He has spent some months in Philadelphia, in charge of a Hospital Surgeon.—FREEMAN is looking well, but loses the use of an arm.

TO VOLUNTEERS!—We call the attention of persons subject to Draft, to the advertisement of Lieut. KNAPP, Recruiting Officer, in our columns to-day. The quotas for the different towns may yet be raised, and save a Draft, by following the suggestions of Lieut. KNAPP.

JAMES MORRIS, of this village, a member of the gallant 37th, who was wounded through the wrist at the battle of Williamsburg, paid us a visit on Friday last. Jay
