DIED.—The Jamestown Democrat announces in fitting terms of sorrow at his loss, the death of Wm. P. MARTIN, son of Judge R. MARTIN. He was a member of Co. B, 72d Regiment. He died at his father's residence in Jamestown on the 17th ult.

THE CASE OF MYERS.—We understand that G. H. Myers, charged with stabbing a man at Salamanca, waived an examination on Monday last, and was committed for trial. It is understood that his counsel will apply to the Supreme Court to have him admitted to bail.

THE MILLERITES are again trying to cause an excitement. They now set the 17th of August as the day on which all subinary wars are to be closed up. If they would set a lay for the end of the war, and strive to bring about, they would be better employed.

COL. BINGHAM.—We are gratified to learn that Col. Bingham has been honorably discharged from arrest, and has now joined his Regiment, although not in a fit condition to do so, but because he considered it his duty—charges against him were founded on a

DEATH OF EDWARD SHULTZ.—This young man, who belonged to the 154th Reg't, was formerly a resident of this place; where his parents now reside. His age was 22 years.—The following letter from the Hospital where he died, will be read by many of his young friends with much interest:

ODD-FELLOWS HALL HOSPITAL,
 Washington, D. C., Feb. 19, '63

DEAR SIR:—I suppose long before this you are aware that your son, EDWARD SHULTZ, is no more. His brother had the satisfaction of seeing him alive, having arrived about an hour previous to his death. I thought you might be gratified to hear more of the circumstances of his sickness and death than your son could give you. He was brought here six days before he died, and it soon became evident that his case was a severe one; his fever ran very high; his pulse beat at times 130 in a minute. He was most of the time delirious and seemed to suffer much, though he did not probably realize it. I perceived at once that he had been accustomed to think on religious subjects, and I took the first opportunity to converse with him. I began by remarking to him that he seemed to be a friend to Jesus. "Yes," said he, "I have trusted in Him for a few years past, and I find it a good thing now—first-rate, first-rate;" repeating it with emphasis. It was painfully interesting to hear him pray and sing and shout, when his mind was all in confusion. I sometimes think that at such times persons show with greater certainty the current of their thoughts. We all felt interested in him, and did all we could to soothe his pathway to the grave; but we trust he had a friend that was better to him than father or mother, brother or sister. His last night was one of great suffering, and the two lines he repeated during a lull of his pain, were very impressive. They were these:

"Jesus, lover of my soul,
 Let me to thy bosom fly."

These lines embody a prayer which I believe has been answered, and he is now in the paradise of God. It was but little we could do for him in his last hours but to keep him in bed and give him water as often as he required it. Soon after his brother arrived it was evident to us all that he was dying. He sailed rapidly, and at just 11 o'clock, when the church bells were tolling to call together the worshippers of God, his spirit took its flight to the abode of the blessed. Thus passed away a Christian
